Also last month, I got an e-mail from someone named Howard, who had cc'd me regarding work he wanted done. I replied, saying that I was not the person he was looking for. Instead of that being the end of it, I got argued with. I don't remember the specifics anymore, but he did try to tell me he had the correct e-mail address; he added, "Michelle, it's Howard" (emphasis mine).

Howard sent me another e-mail after that, continuing with the presumption that I was the person he was looking for, the person from whom he could expect work.
